rethinking anomalies

宇宙论

Victor Muñoz Sanz is an assistant professor of urban design at TUDelft, working on critical research on the architecture and urbanism of the past, present, and future of work, examining how the design of productive landscapes intersects with technology and management practices. Qualified as an architect at the School of Architecture of Madrid (ETSAM, 2006), he holds a Master of Architecture in urban design, with distinction, from Harvard University Graduate School of Design (2011) and a PhD cum laude in architecture from Universidad Politécnica de Madrid (2016). He is the author of the books Reconnecting Cities, People, and Nature (Birkhäuser, 2025) and Una Rápida Compañera (Bartlebooth 2024), as well as co-editor of Automated Landscapes (Nieuwe Instituut, 2023), Roadside Picnics: Encounters with the Uncanny (dpr Barcelona, 2022), and Habitat: Ecology Thinking in Architecture (nai010, 2022). He was a fellow at the Akademie Schloss Solitude, coordinator of the Jaap Bakema Study Centre and co-principal researcher of Automated Landscapes at Het Nieuwe Instituut, and Emerging Curator at the Canadian Center for Architecture. Victor is co-curator of the exhibition Convivium: Food Systems at the Limits at the Architekturmuseum der TUM in Munich (April-October 2026).

Platform architectures: From Factory Floors to Random Stacks. What spatial forms emerge when production and consumption are reorganized through platforms and automation? This lecture connects robotic factories and e-commerce afterlives to reveal how platform architectures restructure territories, redistribute labor, and generate new forms of spatial inequality and material excess.
