As a part of BAITASI Remade, the organizers will hold an international design competition to improve the BAITASI neighbourhood.

Different from the typically ordered Beijing courtyards, there are many tiny courtyards scattered in the old city of Beijing.

Yuan'er (courtyard), is the most essential element in the composition of the old city of Beijing. The space inside is usually very small, and living in it can be hard yet colorful. It is part of Beijing's realistic life, and is a miniature of China's old cities.

The Baitasi 2016 International Design Competition aims to draw attentions of the world into the small courtyards in Beijing, to reinterpret and reinvent new possibilities of development for such regions in the context of urban development.
